

Name

Nancy Pierno

Your Comment

I believe we should go with the public option. Since PSEG is based in New Jersey it seems they are not interested in what is best for New Yorkers. In addition, the fact that a private company must please their stockholders makes it more expensive for ratepayers. I don't mind paying for electricity, but I don't want to put money in someone else's pockets. It seems that the public option is the only one that makes sense if you are a ratepayer